Koh Hong is part of the Than Bok Khorani National Park.

See & Do

Relax on board and delight in the views as the yacht makes way for Koh Hong. Take the tender, head to shore. Here you will find just the one beach, Pelay Beach, but it is recognised for being extremely beautiful, boasting fine white sand, coral and many varieties of tropical fish. It is framed by limestone rock formations which give it a cosy, enclosed feel. Enjoy some snorkelling in the clear waters.

The snorkelling is amazing amongst reefs teeming with schools of clown fish, parrot fish, angel fish, sergeant majors and needle nose fish to name a few.

See & Do

If you like hiking, you could head to Koh Phi Phi Don view point. It is a tough climb, but very rewarding as you observe the magnificent views of the aqua, emerald and jade colours of the sea ahead. Sample some of the vibrant nightlife. Taking a walk onshore is always entertaining, as no cars or motorbikes are allowed, and narrow alleys are full with vendors, with unusual items for sale.

Day 6 Phi Phi Islands - Ko Rok Nok

35nm

Overview

The two sister-islands of Ko Rok are known as Ko Rok Nok and Ko Rok Nai, which means the inner and the outer island. Both islands are 100% National Park. They are separated by a narrow channel, with abundant clear water and coral, also great for snorkelling and SCUBA diving. Although there may be a few other visiting yachts, it is relatively quiet and remote.

See & Do

Enjoy the beaches of which Ao Man Sai Beach, ranked in the top ten most beautiful beaches in Thailand, has real white powder sands and crystal clear waters.

Revel in some stunning snorkelling and diving to see the undersea world of the fertile coral reefs of many species. Plenty of Nemo fish are to be seen and there is a good chance of seeing turtles and a brief glimpse of a Black Tip Reef shark. For the energetic, we can suggest a pleasant hiking trail up a hill for great views of the anchorage and area.

Picnic on the beach for lunch, dinner on board.

Overnight

At anchor in Ko Rok Nok.

Day 7 Ko Rok Nok - Butang Group

45nm

Overview

The Butang Group of islands lies approximately 27 miles to the northwest of Langkawi, in The Tarutao National Park. These seven granite islands (Koh Lipe, Koh Adang, Koh Rawi, Koh Butang, Koh Tanga, Koh Taratao and Koh Chuka) - the most southern Thailand islands – are mostly uninhabited and are all covered with lush rainforest and fringed with white sand beaches. Koh Lipe is the only populated island in the Butang Group with several restaurants, shops and bars.

See & Do

Early morning 5 hour cruise to the Butangs. Explore the islands. The area is perfect for enjoying long white beaches and coral reefs in clear water. Sail to the west coast of Ko Adang and anchor on one of the five yacht moorings that are quite close to the corals. Here is a perfect place for a barbecue, right on the beach, with fantastic snorkelling over a coral garden just off the beach. The very deep and clear waters around this group of islands provide perfect snorkelling and diving conditions with beautiful corals.

Dine

Enjoy a barbecue on the beach in Koh Adang or dinner at On The Rocks restaurant at Serendipity Beach Resort in Koh Lipe.

Overnight

At anchor.

Day 8 Butang Group - Langkawi

45nm

Overview

Langkawi is an archipelago consisting of 99 islands in the Andaman Sea, only 4 of which are inhabited. The islands' waters are ideal for sailing as distances between islands are short, waters are warm, winds are favourable and there are many quiet sandy bays for mooring, swimming and picnicking. It's a nature lover's dream with natural white sand beaches, vibrant coral reefs, lush rainforest foliage and craggy mountain peaks. Once a haven for pirates, Langkawi's intriguing cultural and ethnic diversity can be traced back to its days as a centre for Chinese, Indian and Arab traders.

See & Do

Enjoy the last leg of your trip. If you want to explore Langkawi before you leave some sights might include Telaga Tujuh for a swim in some freshwater rock pools, the Oriental Village, Air Hangtat Village, and Kota Mahsuri.

Dine

Enjoy your final lunch on board.
